SOUTHERN REGION

Endowed with a warm tropical climate, a wealth of natural attractions and a harmonious, multi-racial society with its unique cultural manifestations, Malaysia offers the uninitiated as well as the seasoned traveller alike, a wide choice of holiday opportunities all-year round.

This brochure provides a window into the charming Southern Region states of Melaka and Johor in Peninsular Malaysia and is one of a series of five that provides enticing glimpses of the bewildering range of attractions found in this land of fascinating contrasts.

The southern region of Peninsular Malaysia consists of the states of Melaka and Johor. Both possessed their own unique charms and appeal, the former being renowned for its rich historical heritage whilst the latter is reputed for its wealth of natural attractions and as a shopping destination.

Travelling to the numerous points of interest in the Southern Region is easy and convenient via the North-South Expressway and the well developed network of metalled roads radiating from it.

MELAKA

Steeped in history, Melaka rose to the height of its power during the era of the Melaka Sultanate in the 15th century. It became one of the great trading emporiums in the East, being a port-of-call for traders from the Middle East, India, China and many other parts of the world. Today, visitors flock to the state to visit its many historical sites and experience its exotic potpourri of mixed cultures.

The Johor Causeway

JOHOR

Johor, the southern gateway into the Peninsula, is endowed with a long coastline bordering both the Straits of Melaka and the South China Sea, numerous offshore islands, pristine recreational forests, waterfalls and vast agricultural plantations, is a paradise for those who love the outdoors. Johor Bahru, its capital is a haven for shopping and entertainment with its modern shopping centres, cottage industries, and numerous night spots.

Melaka

Traditional stairway to a Melaka house

Encompassing an area of 658 sq.km, Melaka is located on the south-western coast of Peninsular Malaysia, about 147 km or a 2 hours drive from Kuala Lumpur. The capital of the state is Melaka City, also dubbed as Malaysia's Historical City.

An exiled Hindu prince from Sumatra by the name of Parameswara founded the state in 1400 and became the first ruler of the famed Melaka Sultanate. He subsequently embraced Islam and established the foundations of an empire which reached its heyday during the reign of Sultan Mansor Shah.

Its lucrative spice trade and importance as a sea port made it a prized possession in the Far East, resulting in the Portuguese conquest in 1511. After 130 years of Portuguese rule, the Dutch wrested control of Melaka in 1641 and ruled the state until 1826 when it was taken over by the British, who stayed on until the country attained independence in 1957.

Melaka's population is a polyglot of races comprising Malays, Chinese, Indians, descendants of the Portuguese and the Baba-Nyonya community who have adopted much of the Malay culture into theirs.

Melaka's Peranakan Architecture

Visitors to the state invariably head for the city of Melaka as most of the historical attractions in the state are located within the city. Of particular interest is the Heritage Trail within the city centre where the major historical sites can be found. It is best to take a walking tour to the various spots. One can also take a leisurely trishaw ride through the city's narrow, winding streets and allow one's imagination to be stirred by the images of a bygone era.

A Famosa

The Porta de Santiago is part of a fortress of the A Famosa, built by the Portuguese in 1511. It was damaged by the Dutch during an attack. Timely intervention by Sir Stamford Raffles in 1808, saved the fort from destruction and its gateway still stands today.

Stadthuys

The Stadthuys is believed to be the oldest Dutch building in the East. It was built in 1641 to serve as the official residence of the Dutch Governors. The Stadthuys is situated right in the centre of Melaka city. It is a fine example of Dutch masonry and woodwork skills. Today, it houses the Melaka Museum, which has a special History Department and a section on Ethnography. Visitors can find excellent artifacts on display such as traditional bridal costumes and authentic relics from Melaka's past. The nearby clock tower and fountain which was dedicated to Queen Victoria in 1904 are popular subjects for photography.

Queen Victoria's Fountain

St. John's Fort

St. John's Fort is strategically located atop St. John's Hill, 3 km from the city centre. Built by the Dutch in the 18th century, it was once a Portuguese chapel dedicated to John, the Baptist. It is interesting to note that the gun embrasures of the fort face inland and not towards the sea. This was to counter attacks by the enemy from the hinterland and not from the sea.

St. Paul's Church

Located on a hillock behind the A Famosa, St. Paul's Church was built by Duarte Coelho, a Portuguese captain. After the Dutch conquest of Melaka, the church was converted into a burial ground and renamed St. Paul's Church. The tombstones found here have Latin and Dutch inscriptions. The body of St. Francis Xavier, was laid in the open grave here in 1553 before being shipped to Goa, India.

St. Francis Xavier's Church

St. Francis Xavier's Church

This church was built by Father Farve, a priest of the French Foreign Mission. Based on Gothic-style architecture, it was built in dedication to St. Francis Xavier also known as Apostle of the East, who spread catholicism in South East Asia during the 16th century.

St. Peter's Church

This is the only church in Malaysia with a life-size alabaster statue of the Dead Lord Before The Resurrection. Built by the Portuguese in 1710 with its architectural style blending to that of Oriental and Occidental.

Christ Church

Another fine example of Dutch architecture using timber. The exquisite craftsmanship of this church dating back to 1153, is best seen in the hand made pews as well as in the ceiling beams which were constructed without joints.

Hang Tuah's Mausoleum is located at Jalan Klebang. Hang Tuah was Melaka's greatest warrior during the reign of Sultan Mansor Shah. As the commander of Melaka's naval forces, he defended the thriving port from being attacked by the Siamese and Achinese. Hang Tuah's outstanding loyalty and his prowess as a warrior earned him a popular place in the history of Melaka.

Hang Jebat's Mausoleum

Hang Tuah's well is located in Kampong Duyung, the birth place of the legendary warrior where he spent his childhood among four of his good friends who would later become the famous knights of Melaka. Mausoleums have also been erected in memory of two of his comrades, Hang Jebat and Hang Kasturi.

Tun Teja's Mausoleum is the gravesite of a noble man's daughter from Pahang who was convinced by Hang Tuah to marry Sultan Mahmud Shah of Melaka. She died a queen in Merlimau about 24 km from Melaka town, while retreating with members of the Melaka royal family from the Portuguese attack in 1511.

Christ Church

Hang Tuah's Well

Hang Li Poh's Well

Literally meaning 'Chinese Hill' Bukit China is the largest Chinese cemetery outside China with tombs dating back to the Ming Dynasty. This hill was presented to the followers of Hang Li Po, who had been given in marriage by the Emperor of China to the Sultan of Melaka.

Built in 1459, Hang Li Po's well located at the foot of Bukit China served as the only source of water during great droughts. The Dutch enclosed it with stout walls in 1677 to maintain their ultimate right to the well.

Baba-Nyonya Heritage Museum

The Melaka Sultanate Palace is an impressive reconstruction of the original palace of the former Malay rulers of Melaka. Located at the foot of St. Paul's Hill, its architecture is based on the description of the palace given in the Malay annals written by Munshi Abdullah. It presently serves as the Melaka Cultural Museum providing interesting glimpses into the glorious era of the Melaka Sultanate.

Located along Jalan Tun Tan Cheng Lock, the Baba and Nyonya Heritage Museum is the ancestral home of 3 generations of a Baba Nyonya family. These straits-born Chinese have adopted much of the Malay culture into theirs. The museum provides interesting insights into the priceless heirloom unique to the Baba Nyonya heritage.

The Proclamation of Independence Memorial Building was constructed in 1912 and is significant as the place where the first Prime Minister of Malaysia, Tunku Abdul Rahman Putra Al-Haj, read the historical document proclaiming independence for the country in 1956. Among the historical exhibits on display is the car that the former Prime Minister used for his journey to Melaka after his successful negotiation in London for the nation's independence.

Melaka boasts of some of the oldest mosques in the country. The Kampong Hulu mosque built in 1728 by Dato' Shamsuddin as well as the 600 year old Tranquerah Mosque and the Kampong Keling Mosque feature a unique architectural style, consisting of a three-tiered pyramid structure instead of a dome. Instead of the usual minarets, these mosques have pagoda-like structures.

The tomb of Sultan Hussain of Johor, the ruler who signed the agreement ceding Singapore to the British, is located within the compound of the Tranquerah Mosque.

Cheng Hoon Teng Temple built in 1646 is the oldest Chinese temple in the country. The building was constructed with materials totally imported from China, with ornate carvings and excellent lacquer work.

Sam Po Kong temple is dedicated to Admiral Cheng Ho, the great Chinese mariner and is named after a fish believed to have miraculously saved the admiral's ship from sinking during a storm.

Air Keroh

Air Keroh, an easy 15-minute drive north-east of the city, is a popular tourist recreational enclave situated in a vast forest reserve. Attractions here include Mini Malaysia, Mini ASEAN Village, Melaka Zoo, a butterfly farm and a scenic lake, an ideal spot for picnics and boating activities. Mini Malaysia, a theme village made up of authentic traditional houses of the various Malaysian states set within a rural setting, provides a glimpse into the local way of life. Located within the same area is the Mini ASEAN Village consisting of the traditional houses of the ASEAN countries of Indonesia, Philippines, Singapore, Brunei and Thailand.

Golfing buffs will have a great time driving the ball at the 18-hole Air Keroh Country Club reputed to have the longest golf course in Malaysia.

Within Air Keroh, there are several resort hotels providing excellent facilities for visitors intending to spend an extended holiday in Air Keroh as well as to visit other tourist spots in Melaka. Alternatively, take on the challenge of the superb greens and fairways of the magnificent A'Famosa Golf Resort located just beside the North South Expressway at nearby Alor Gajah. Situated within the A'Famosa Golf Resort is the A'Famosa Water World promising hours of fun-filled excitement for the family.

Islands

More than a historical state, Melaka boasts of 2 charming island resorts, Pulau Besar and Pulau Upeh. Pulau Besar, 10 km south of Melaka town, abounds in legends about mermaids and princesses as well as sacred graves and shrines. It is a haven of tranquility for those in search of fresh air and silky white beaches. The 121- room Pandanusa Island Resort is an international class hotel offering an 18-hole golf course and a host of sea sports facilities.

Covering some 7 acres, Pulau Upeh is another island gem. It offers opportunities to observe the conservation efforts of the endangered Hawksbeak turtle, historical sites and spectacular sunsets. The resort on the island provides a relaxing weekend getaway far from the maddening crowd.

SHOPPING

Shopping in downtown Melaka can be an interesting and delightful experience, especially for those hunting for antiques and local products. Jonker Street, now known as Jalan Hang Jebat with its old world ambience is the perfect place to shop for antiques, authentic collectibles and artifacts. One can find just about anything from rare coins to replicas of ancient silver and brassware, restyled ceramics of an ancient Chinese era, old Victorian furniture and even jewelry boxes inlaid with mother-of-pearl. Most of the outlets at Jonker Street can make special arrangements for shipment of bulky purchases overseas.

Don't miss the experience of hunting for local Melaka handicrafts, souvenirs and delicacies at Taman Merdeka, Jalan Hang Jebat and Jalan Tokong. Infokraf Melaka on Jalan Kota offers a range of batik, bamboo products and ceramic ware made by local craftsmen. For those looking for the convenience of one-stop shopping in air-conditioned comfort, Melaka has its fair share of modern shopping centres. Prominent among these is the extensive Mahkota Parade Departmental Store which has Parkson Grand, a local chain as its anchor tenant. Other popular establishments include Jaya Jusco, The Store, Fajar, Great Wall and Madam Kings.

Variety of antique items can be obtain at Jonker street

EATING OUT

Because of its multi-ethnic influence, food in Melaka is largely an exciting combination of Portuguese, Chinese, Indian and Malay style cooking. A blend of Chinese-Malay cooking can be enjoyed when one chooses to eat at a Nyonya restaurant. Some local Nyonya favourites are acar, sambal, duck soup with salted vegetables, chicken kapitan, chicken cooked in coconut milk blended with fresh spices and otak-otak - a snack consisting of minced fish, coconut milk and spices steamed in a wrapping of banana leaf.

Sago Gula Melaka

For a taste of Portuguese cooking, one can try Devil's Curry which is a spicy chicken dish with a unique sour and spicy taste. Melaka also offers its own version of the famous satay, called satay celup. It consists of skewered prawns, squid, cockles, fish, meat and vegetables that are dipped into a unique spicy peanut sauce. For Portuguese fare, the restaurants at Portuguese Village Square are worth trying. Portuguese, Nyonya and Chinese restaurants can also be found in Taman Melaka Raya, a newer section of the city close to the Mahkota Parade and the seafront.

For dessert, one can sample a wide range of Melaka sweets. Among them is sago gula melaka, made from steamed sago topped with chilled coconut milk and gula melaka syrup. Other tempting favourites include kuih koci, angku, buah melaka, kuih lapis and kuih talam.

Ikan bakar or grilled fish, a local Malay favourite can be enjoyed at Serkam and Pernu on the coastal stretch just south of Melaka town.

ENTERTAINMENT

Light and Sound Show

This show held nightly at the Padang Pahlawan re-enacts the highlights of Melaka's history using a combination of lights, narrative, dialogue, music and sound effects.

Melaka's string of pubs and night cafes are excellent spots for relaxation and for a person to unwind from the day's activities. Most of the international and local hotels offer entertainment with live bands as well as karaoke lounges.

Johor, located in the southern most part of Peninsular Malaysia, is the third largest state in Malaysia. The state has 8 districts and is a popular holiday destination offering exciting shopping opportunities and a wide range of outdoor, recreational and leisure activities.

Its population of about 2.3 million comprises of a multi-racial mix of Malays, mostly of Javanese and Bugis descent as well as Chinese, Indians and others. A colourful potpourri of cultures and traditions have evolved from this mix manifested in its unique art forms. Among them is the mystical Kuda Kepang dance where the performers imitate the movements of a rider on a horse, sometimes falling into a trance-like state. Ghazal music, played in a light and relaxing mood on the violin, accordion, mandolin and rebana (drums) is distinctly Johor in flavour, usually performed at weddings, banquets and cultural functions.

Johor Bahru, the state capital, located at the southern tip of the peninsular and linked by road and rail to Singapore, serves as the southern gateway to the vast hinterland of Johor.

This beautifully landscaped city spread over undulating hills has undergone rapid transformation over the years into a thriving commercial centre as well as a tourist draw. Its main attractions are its seaside ambience, charming Anglo-Malay heritage buildings, a wide range of shopping centres, fine seafood and exciting nightlife.

Johor abounds with great holiday opportunities for those in search of sun, sand and sea. The popular beach resort of Desaru on its southern coast is a magnet for holiday makers from Singapore. Its pristine island havens dotting the South China Sea are simply irresistible getaways, with their unspoilt white sandy beaches, verdant jungles and rich marine life.

Johor's vast rubber and oil palm plantations and the untouched lowland forest of the Endau-Rompin National Park straddling the border with Pahang, offers a rich educational experience for the uninitiated and beckon those in search of adventure.

surfing, sailing and angling. Other magical islands where chalet-type of accommodation is available are Pulau Tinggi, Pulau Tengah, Pulau Besar, Pulau Hujong, Pulau Rawa, Pulau Pemanggil and Pulau Aur. Apart from beach and water sport activities on these islands, visitors can also indulge in jungle trekking, watching leatherback turtles lay their eggs, island hopping, excursions and get a taste of the local lifestyle in a fishing village. Mersing, 138 km north of Johor

Scuba diving

Chalet type accommodation on Pulau Besar

Bahru is the take off point to Johor's islands in the South China Sea. This gateway to Johor's marine wonders is a tourist destination in its own right with its picturesque beach front, charming fishing villages and the rustic rural environment of the surrounding areas.

Endau-Rompin National Park

Endau-Rompin National Park spans the borders of Johor and Pahang covering a vast area of 488 sq.km. This ancient tropical rainforest is home to a variety of large and small mammals, insects, fish and birds. It is said to be one of the last remaining sanctuaries of tropical flora and fauna in this region. Mostly hilly, the park is the watershed of several rivers including the Sungai Endau, Sungai Selai and Sungai Jasin. Places of interest here are the Orang Asli settlement in Kampong Peta and the waterfalls in Upeh Guling and Buaya Sangkut. The park is a sanctuary to the rare Sumatran rhinoceros, an endangered species. Overnight facilities within the park

can be found at Jasin, Upeh Guling and Buaya Sangkut waterfalls. Adventure seekers have a choice of chalets, dormitories or camping sites. To get to the park one has to first head for Kluang and then to Kahang. From there, a four-wheel drive vehicle takes the visitor along a rugged 56 km jungle track to Kampong Peta, the entry point to the park. Here, the visitor has to register himself to gain access to the park. Alternatively, Kampong Peta can also be reached by boat from the Felda Nitar II land scheme. Other popular recreational forests in the state are found at the foothills of Gunung Arong, Gunung Lambak, Gunung Berlumut in north-eastern Johor and Gunung Panti north of Kota Tinggi. These recreational havens with their lush greenery, rushing waterfalls and nearby mountains are ideal for weekend family outings. Camping sites, picnic spots, car parks, rest rooms, foot paths, benches, shades and other facilities are provided at these spots.

Golfing

Johor's large number of golf courses makes it a paradise in this region for golfing buffs. Some of these courses offer resort facilities such as accommodation, swimming pools, spas, fitness centre and shops. Golf clubs located in and around Johor Bahru include the Ponderosa,

Austin Hill Country Club, Tanjung Puteri Golf & Country Club, Pulai Springs Golf & Country Club, Octville Golf & Country Club, Palm Resort & Country Club, StarHill Golf & Country Club and Royal Johor Country Club. Several of these provide night golfing facilities.

Further afield the Kukup Golf Resort, Seban Golf Club and Desaru Golf & Country Club provide country side tranquility and allow golfers to combine their holiday with a few rounds of golf.

SHOPPING

Johor abounds with a wide range of shopping opportunities for the visitor. These range from modern shopping malls and hypermarkets to traditional bazaars, handicraft centres, night markets and duty free complexes. The larger shopping establishments are open from 10.00 a.m. to 10.00 p.m., seven days a week. The smaller traders start earlier and end trading at around 8.00 p.m.

The shopping malls in Johor Bahru are stocked with a wide selection of local and imported goods including designer wear, branded goods, electrical/electronic items, fabrics, household products, ladies and men's accessories, jewelry, sports wear and equipment, cosmetics and fragrances. Annual sales offering attractive shopping discounts and bargains are organised by most establishments. Among the major shopping centres are Plaza Pelangi, Tun Abdul Razak Complex, Pelangi Leisure Mall, Perling Mall, Plaza Kotaraya, Holiday Plaza, Lien Hoe Complex and Plaza Angsana. Hypermarkets such as Carrefour, Giant and Makro are also popular with both locals and foreigners.

Visitors looking for duty free goods can shop in comfortable surrounding at the Johor Bahru Duty Free Complex located at the Johor Bahru

Local delicacies at a night market

International Ferry Terminal on the city's eastern shoreline. The complex consists of a large duty free department store and supermarket encompassing over 160 retail outlets. A dazzling variety of local and imported goods are available here.

For visitors who are keen to experience shopping with a local flavour, try the night markets or 'pasar malam' that can be found at several locations around Johor Bahru. The most popular of these markets is the Kampung Melayu Majidee Night Market along Jalan Tebrau. Open from 5.00 p.m. to 10.00 p.m. every Monday, the wide assortment of locally made goods on sale here include leather items, clothing, fruits, fresh produce, household ware, costume jewellery, sundry goods and local dishes. Other night markets can be found at Taman Pelangi on Tuesdays and Kampong Setagi and Jalan Kebun Teh on Wednesdays.

EATING OUT

The mix of cultural influences in Johor has resulted in a wonderful blend of culinary delights that has made it a gastronomic paradise in its own right. Visitors should not miss the famous Laksa Johor, a noodle dish served with gravy cooked with coconut milk, flaked fish and sprinkled with fresh vegetables. Another delicacy is lontong, pressed cubes of rice which are eaten with vegetables cooked in a rich coconut sauce. One of the popular seafood offerings is ikan bakar, grilled fish eaten with a spicy tart sauce. Of course, the ever popular satay - skewered beef, chicken or lamb barbecued over an open fire and consumed with a thick peanut sauce is easily available. For those with a sweet tooth, the popular icy dessert, ais kacang or a variety of local cakes and puddings are just perfect to cap off one's meal.

Johor Bahru is obviously one of the best places to sample the many tempting local dishes. Most of the food stalls and dining spots come alive when night falls over the city. For the adventurous, head for the stalls at Lido Beach and Stulang Laut to try the local favourites and hawker fare.

Eden Floating
Palace Restaurant

Night out at Johor Bahru

An exciting place to dine is at the Eden Floating Palace Restaurant, anchored off the Johor Bahru Duty Free Complex. This restaurant is a unique dining and entertainment centre serving fine Malaysian Chinese food where diners can pick their choice of seafood and vegetables from a market style setting and have it cooked for them. The restaurant can accommodate up to 1,100 guests.

One of the best places for authentic Malay cuisine, the Mawar Complex Restaurant located at Jalan Sungai Chat offers a daily buffet lunch of local favourites. Reasonably priced and authentic in taste, it is a treat to be savoured.

Other popular seafood dining spots are located in Tepian Tebrau, Jalan Skudai and Lido Beach.
